What is Psi Chi National Honor Society?

Psi Chi, a National Honor Society in Psychology, is an organization that requires outstanding academic achievement and provides opportunities for students to present ideas, interests, and research at a regional and national level. At the campus level, Psi Chi members have opportunities to connect with professors, explore new areas of Psychology, conduct research, and play an active role in the operations and maintenance of the University of Colorado's Psi Chi/ Psychology Club chapter.

To join Psi Chi, students must meet particular academic criteria:

- Completion of at least 3 semesters of college courses (36 credit hours)
- Transfer students must have completed at least one semester at CU Boulder
- Completion of at least 9 semester hours of psychology
- Declared psychology major
- Undergraduates must have a cumulative GPA of no less than 3.0 and a psychology GPA of no less than 3.3 (not rounded up)
- Graduate students must have an average of "B" or better in all graduate courses in psychology

If you believe you meet these requirements and would like to be considered for Psi Chi membership, please include a copy of your degree audit that shows your psychology GPA and overall GPA (available at www.colorado.edu/plus) and a lifetime membership fee of $80 along with this application. The application fee is non-refundable. Additionally, you will have to schedule a time during office hours to meet with an officer to review your application. Please allow at least fifteen minutes to meet with the officer and to complete additional paperwork.

For a complete application, please include:

- ___ Registration fee of $80 (Make checks out to "Psi Chi")
- ___ A copy of your degree audit
- ___ Interview with an Officer (written or completed during Officer office hours)
- ___ Registrations cards (available online and in the office)
